1. Executive Summary:

Major outcomes, results, and impact of the chair

The 2020-2022 period coincides with the Covid-19 phenomenon. At this time, activities are limited to avoid a bigger spread of the virus, especially in 2020. Nevertheless, UNESCO Chair on COSDEV (Communication and Sustainable Development) is consistently running a program to implement the Sustainable and Development Goals (SDG's) of the UN, among others: No Poverty, Quality Education, Sustainable Cities and Communities; Life on Land; Peace, Justice, and Strong Institutions; Partnerships for the Goals.

COSDEV also actively participated in international annual ORBICOM meetings. In 2021, we took part and contributed to the Madrid meeting and symposium. Under the theme "Health and Communication Crisis in the Covid19 era," the COSDEV chair holder and research members presented four research papers at this symposium. The papers have been published. In 2022, COSDEV prepared and collected three research papers to be presented in Sarawak, Malaysia.

Dissemination of research results, community building activities, workshops, and training were conducted within these two years as follows: 1. The results of research in collaboration with the University of Ilmenau, Germany, have been published in online media such as detik.com and kompas.com (Indonesia). The results of this study have also been published in the ISKI journal and disseminated at the ICA conference in Paris in July 2022; 2. "Visual Communication: Creative Imagination," "Photography and Mobile Journalism," "Editing Fundamental Technique," and "English & Occupational Purposes," for students conducted in partnership with the UNESCO Chair (COSDEV) Office and Faculty of Communication; 3. "Workshops for Writing Articles" were conducted for researchers or lecturers in partnership with the UNESCO Chair (COSDEV) Office and Faculty of Communication; 4. "Community Building" activities on media literacy were conducted for elementary and secondary students, in partnership with the village population of Ciseeng, Bogor, Jawa Barat, Indonesia, from March to July 2022; 5. COSDEV also conducted a "Sustainable Living Program" for the village population of Kiarasari, in the district of Bogor, West Java, Indonesia, on "Risk Communication," focusing on disaster mitigation in response to several earthquakes in that Province and its surroundings.

For Researchers/Lecturers:

1. Workshop Writing Articles for International Journal

Date: July to November, 2021.

Medium: Zoom

Participants: 20 researchers

Speaker: Prof. Dr. Samsudin A. Rahim (Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia).

The recognition of lecturers and researchers is marked by the number of works in both national journals and international indexed journals. In addition, the number of articles cited is proof that the work has received appreciation from the scientific community.

To achieve a good article, of course, affirmative steps are needed to ensure the recognition of lecturers' work at the national and international levels increases. This activity aims to improve the writing quality of lecturers/researchers. Due to the Covid-19 situation, this activity is carried out online.

During this period, the Chair also held community building activities in the villages of Kiarasari and Ciseeng, Bogor Regency, West Java, Indonesia. This activity focused on education for disaster mitigation and digital literacy. Communication related to disaster is crucial in a country such as Indonesia which is regularly hit by natural disasters. In addition to focusing on disaster issues, we also helped build communication networks between communities and the local governments.

In addition, we also conducted workshops and teaching activities for community members about digital literacy. Digital literacy training and mentoring is also important considering the number of internet users in Indonesia in the past 2 years has increased dramatically from 54% to 76% in March 2022. It is hoped that the community will be able to use ICT to provide solutions to their lives.

c. Future Plans and Development Prospects:
(Outline of action plan for short/medium and long term development prospects)

The UNESCO Chair on Communication and Sustainable Development (COSDEV) focuses its activities on interdisciplinary research on communication and sustainable development. For that purpose, we strive to continue to develop multidisciplinary, interdisciplinary, and transdisciplinary communication studies in order to solve problems related to SDG's. As a developing country, Indonesia faces a variety of issues related to SDG's that need to be studied and addressed. Through different research approaches to SDGs, we can provide recommendations and solutions. Therefore, we will increase and strengthen our research collaboration with various universities and research institutions both in Indonesia and outside of the country. This effort to open cooperation with and access international levels has become the main concern of the Chair.

In November 2022, Cosdev will hold an international conference with the theme "Communication Inclusivity: Engaging Society and Digital". This activity is expected to make a scientific contribution to digital inclusion. In addition, in October 2022 Cosdev will also publish a book chapter with the theme "Questioning Digital Inclusion: Opportunities and Challenges." This book consists of 17 articles that touch on digital inclusion with economic, educational, social, political and cultural issues. In 2023, Cosdev will also publish an international book chapter with the theme "the spectrum of Communication: Sustainable Development and Social Resilience".

Furthermore, the Chair will continue to integrate activity between education, research, and community building. As we have done in the past, our research activities are integrated with education and community building strategies, such as conducting training sessions and providing assistance to the community. These are aspects to be strengthened further.

Our objectives:

1. To promote inclusive communities through integrated research, education, and training.
2. To establish strategic partnership between the chair and other institutions to support opening the access to national and international levels.
